It's all about 'what works best for boys' at Moulsford, whether that's bringing history to life with battle reenactments, mastering grammar and punctuation through the art of Kung fu, or keeping science exciting with tonnes of practicals. This school's innate 'ability to understand how to teach boys and get the most out of them' never fails to impress parents, while the boys themselves can't get enough of the Swallows and Amazons-esque riverfront location. From April through to October, the boys take to the River Thames for raft-building, trips to 'Goose Poo Island' (where boarders toast marshmallows on mild summer evenings), and canoeing, paddle-boarding and kayaking – some pupils and staff even kayak to school. It's a wonder they found the time to raise £28,000 for charity, gain 49 scholarships and reach the IAPS national finals in both football and athletics, all in the past year alone.
